

Responding to Emotion

Adapted from vitaltalk.org
Michael Spiker, MD

Some cognitive questions/statements have strong underlying emotions

If patients do not want to explore the emotional space, respect that boundary

Name (use normalizing statements or questions)

Understand

Respect (effective way to find common ground)

Support

Explore (allows to find deeper meaning)